Interjections

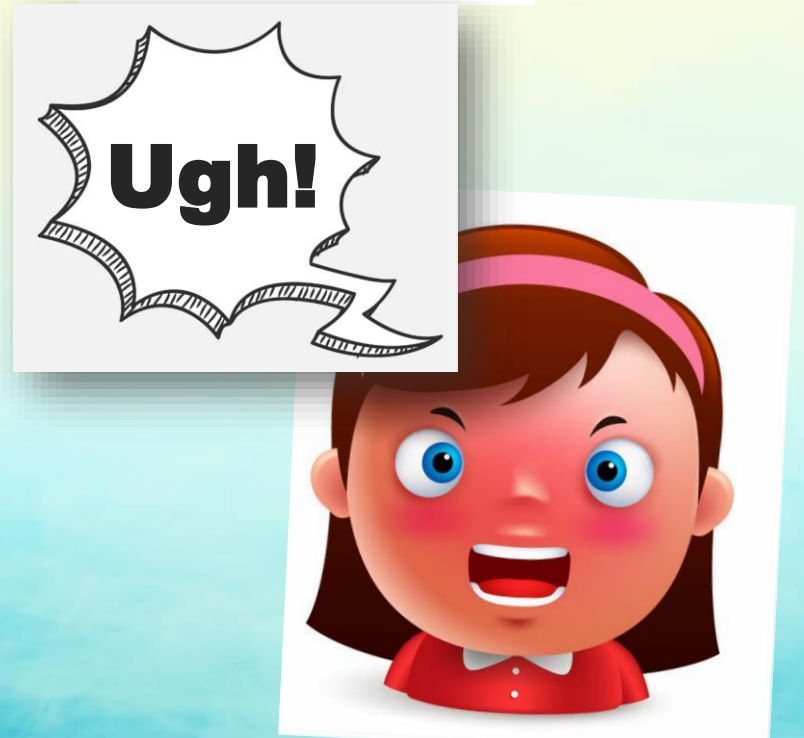
Yippee!

Oh!

OH, NO!

Alas!

Wow!



Ugh!

Using Interjections

We use interjections to express sudden emotions.

happiness

fear

excitement

anger

anger

admiration

anxiety

Using Tone

The tone with which interjections are pronounced is very important. Tone is the manner in which we speak. It helps to express the feeling associated with words.

Example:

Yay! We won the match.

The tone will be happy, loud, high, almost like a small shout.

Shh! Don't make a noise.

The tone here will be quiet, almost like a whisper.

Remember

- A word expressing a strong feeling is called an exclamatory word or an interjection.
- An interjection is usually followed by an exclamation mark (!).
- The tone while uttering interjections is important.

Let’s Practise!

Read these sentences aloud with the right tone.

1. Oh! You dropped the glass.
2. Hurray! We have broken the team’s record.
3. Sigh! What an awful weather.
4. Wow! What a pleasant surprise.
5. Eeks! A cockroach in my shoe!

