

Sentence and Its Kinds

A. Change these affirmative sentences into negative sentences.

- i. I admit that you are a good friend.
- ii. You yourself wanted to be a part of the competition.
- iii. These paints are too expensive to purchase.
- iv. It is alright if we fail.
- v. I will do everything to fulfill my dreams.

B. Change these interrogative sentences into affirmative sentences.

- i. What have I done to upset you so much?
- ii. Why waste time in such silly arguments?
- iii. Who doesn't worship the bountiful Earth?
- iv. Why didn't you consult a doctor?
- v. What though we have lost this match?

C. Change these simple sentences into complex sentences.

- i. He gracefully accepted his defeat.
- ii. She is working hard to get better grades.
- iii. She is too kind to hurt anyone this cruelly.
- iv. His illness kept him home.
- v. Manoj is smarter of the two brothers.

Answers

A.

- i. I do not deny that you are a good friend.
- ii. Didn't you yourself want to be a part of this competition?
- iii. These paints are not cheap enough to be bought.
- iv. It is alright if we do not succeed.
- v. There is nothing I won't do to fulfill my dreams.

B.

- i. I have done nothing to upset you so much.
- ii. There is no reason to waste time in such silly arguments.
- iii. Everyone worships the bountiful Earth.
- iv. You should have consulted a doctor.
- v. No matter that we have lost this match.

C.

- i. He gracefully accepted that he was defeated.
- ii. She is working hard so that she may get better grades.
- iii. She is so kind that she cannot hurt anyone this cruelly.
- iv. He stayed at home because he was ill.
- v. Between the two brothers, Manoj is smarter.